

Mr. Gregory Spanoudakis

President of European Operations

As Canadian Solar's President of European Operations, Gregory Spanoudakis brings more than 18 years of experience in global semiconductor and solar power industries to the company. In this role, Spanoudakis oversees sales and operations in the pan-European market. He previously served as the company's Vice President of International Sales and Marketing from January 2002 to September 2008.

Prior to joining Canadian Solar, Spanoudakis was a senior executive with Future Electronics, one of the world's largest distributors of semiconductor components, where he headed the international division and the export development program from November 1988 to May 1999.

Spanoudakis attended The University of Essex, in Colchester, England and the Sir George William University (now Concordia University) in Montreal, Canada graduating with a bachelor's degree in business in 1981. In 1987, he received his MBA degree with a focus on international business development from Concordia University.